REPORT ON WORLD ENVIRONMENTAL DAY CELEBRATION

DATE: 5TH JUNE 2024

THEME: “Land Restoration, Desertification, and Drought Resilience.”

VENUE: COLLEGE HOSTEL CAMPUS & COLLEGE CAMPUS

REPORT

On June 5, 2024, from 9:00 am to 11:00 pm, Sandra Shroff College of Nursing (SSCN) organized a vibrant celebration of World Environmental Day. The event took place at the Assembly and College Hostel Campus, with active participation from both teaching and non-teaching faculty members of SSCN, as well as N.S.S. volunteers. The theme for this year was “Land Restoration, Desertification, and Drought Resilience.” After a prayer session, Mrs. Sheetal M K, the N.S.S. Program Co-ordinator, revealed the theme, and all attendees pledged to contribute to saving the earth.

Key Highlights:

- Principal Prof. Mr. Samuel Fernandis delivered a motivational speech emphasizing the importance of REDUCE, REUSE & RECYCLE to combat plastic pollution.
- Ms. Shilpi Sharma, a 2nd-year B.Sc. Nursing student, delivered an inspiring speech on the Chipko Movement. This movement, which originated in India during the 1970s, aimed to protect trees and forests from government-backed logging. Demonstrators, primarily rural villagers (especially women), embraced trees to impede loggers, giving rise to the movement’s name (“chipko” means “to hug” or “to cling to” in Hindi).
- The event also included tree plantations around the college campus, where B.Sc. Nursing and G.N.M. students actively participated, planting 15-20 trees. Dr. Mrs. Anita Nawale and Mrs. Daulta Kuwar, along with other faculty members, joined the effort, making it a successful and enthusiastic endeavor.
